SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Celebrated By Mr. and Mrs.
Wm. L. Parker, November 21.

WEDDED 25 YEARS.

Many Friends Present And Numerous Valuable Presents Receivd.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Parker entered charmingly at their hospitable country residence three miles east of the city Saturday evening, Nov. 21st, it being their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

There were about twenty-five family and individual invitations issued to very close relatives and friends, and a large, merry crowd it was, when all assembled.

The hours were from seven to eleven o'clock.

The residence was beautifully illuminated and tastefully decorated. Lovely potted plants and beautiful cut flowers, in rich profusion everywhere, and in every room, lent their added charm and fragrance to the festive occasion.

In the reception hall just beneath the glowing light, was suspended a large wedding bell. Passing on beneath the grille to the rear hall, at the left just back of the portières, was a large, brilliantly lighted table, covered with spotless drawn linen eminently suited as an appropriate background to the glittering shining silver thereon, so beautifully displayed. The spacious dining room was a veritable dream of beauty with its potted plants, trailing sprays, and graceful center. The mantel was banked high with lovely flowers, and suspended from above to meet these, trailing sprays. The window draperies of white lace were beautifully adorned with Boston fern leaves arranged to simulate intricate lace designs.

The cherry sideboard had its share of graceful floral decorations.

Above the center of the table was suspended an immense chandelier adorned with silver white festoons hanging between the several brilliant lights, and these with the other draperies and windings made it indeed a thing of beauty. Diagonally across the room stretched one long heavily burdened table. In the center of the table was a large lace centerpiece upon which stood a tall cut-glass vase filled with delicately tinted, large pink chrysanthemums, and next to this towards either end, upon dainty pieces of handwork, stood two large fruit bowls, heaped with luscious tropical fruits; and yet further towards the ends, large beautifully garnished salad bowls, containing various salads. Dotted here and there, rich and rare cases of luscious beauty. Vlans, pickles, relishes, sauces, etc., ices, cakes, etc., in such abundance and such a variety of tempting edibles, sufficient to satisfy even the most fastidious, were so beautifully served to the guests.

An epicurean feast, indeed! And one that would have done honor to a king's table. The dining room presented one harmonious whole with the unexcelled service.

The "bride" was charmingly gowned in a shimmering silver-gray silk, and looked as happy as on the eve of her first wedding. The "groom" was attired in the conventional black, and seemed as joyous as on the evening he led her to Hymen's altar and claimed her as his own; happy in the delusion he had won the only prize for which he was ready to offer every thanksgiving.

Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, of Elton, sister of the "bride," and Mrs. T.A. King, niece of the "bride," stood in the receiving line, and performed their duties with becoming dignity and grace.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker's guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, S. P. Elgin, W. W. Bradley, A. R. Parker, E. C. Major, Rufus McClendon, J. G. White, Harry G. Edwards, J. G. Childress, Dan Fourqurean, W. D. Ennis.

NOTICE TO FARMERS

people and no less than four marriages have occurred between soldiers and young ladies in the Night Rider districts.

Last spring Sergt. John Givens, of Middleboro, was married to Miss Campbell, of Golden Pond.

In September Amos Winstead, of Madisonville, was married to Miss Sarah Nabbs, of Cerulean Springs.

The same month Floyd T. Brooks, of Henderson, and Miss Cosie Hicks, of Golden Pond, were married.

Oct. 9 J. J. Sweeney, of Owensboro, and Miss Ruth Smith, of Princeton, were wedded. How many other marriages will result from the acquaintances formed during the campaign of a year, remains to be seen.

It is worthy of note that not a single shot has ever been fired at a soldier during all this time, though they have made many arrests and performed their duties with utter disregard of possible danger. In some places urgent appeals by wire and mail were sent to the Governor, begging him to keep the troops on duty, representing that they were the only guarantee of liberty, lives and property. It is said that some of the appeals were sent by persons who formerly had protested against the employment of soldiers.

The Madisonville troops on duty at Gracey, under Lieut. Utley, have made friends everybody and many expressions of general regret over their departure are heard.

BITTER FEELINGS.

Democrats At Murray Want Troops To Stay-Jury Hangs.

Murray, November 29.—The jury trying the case of Jesse Wells on a charge of tampering with the grand jury in the investigation of an alleged fraud charged against the law and order element in the recent primary is unable to agree. Jesse Wells is a cousin of County Judge Wells. The anti-law and order element here is excited over the reorganization of the county committee by the law and order Democrats. Gov. Wilson is being urged to leave troops here and will so do. Judge Wells is expected to be Denny Smith's opponent in the commonwealth's attorney race. The feeling between the factions is bitter.

Thanksgiving Day.

Thanksgiving Day was very generally observed in the city. Practically all of the business houses closed the part of the day and many of them did not reopen in the afternoon.

The union Thanksgiving services were conducted at the Christian church and the sermon was preached by Rev. Geo. H. Means. Special services were held at Grace Episcopal church by Rector Geo. C. Abbott.

Union services were also held by the colored people.

SUNKEN REEFS.

Sweeping the Ocean Floor Instead of Sounding.

The mishap of the cruiser Yankee brings forth the comment that it is the more remarkable as occurring on the coast "perfectly charted." Promising that the Yankee gunners will never let us say we said that while our coast is as well charted as that of any nation, "perfect" is not the characterization yet to be employed. The methods of surveying the ocean floor to locate reefs and shoals are now undergoing a revolution which, when fully accomplished, will reveal to the mariner a method which has hitherto been unchartered and uncharted. The old way of finding out reefs and rocks not evident to the eye was by sounding. Now the coast survey proceeds by "sweeping"—that is, by sinking to the depth a pipe bar, which is trailed along by two boats, one at each end of the bar, and is suspended in the water. Any obstruction encountered is immediately perceptible and is at once noted, located and observed. Coastal waters are carefully "platted," and each plat is thoroughly gone over. The superiority of "sweeping" over "sounding" is made evident by the fact that a complete survey of the area of the Maine coast, covering rather more than forty linear miles, fifteen reefs have been discovered heretofore uncharted. It often happens in sounding that the lead line avoids some narrow spindle of rock whose point is just below the surface of the water and which is uncharted. Now the coast of Brooklyn was gashed by one of these unsuspected pinnacles on our coast a few years ago it was found to be isolated and surrounded with deep water up to within a few feet of its sides. Sweeping will minimize the probability of repetitions of such accidents.—Boston Transcript.

Umbrella as a Weapon.

In one of the women's fencing schools of Paris instruction in the art of attack and defense with foil has been discontinued and umbrellas instituted, says Popular Mechanics.

The first lesson the pupils learn in this up to date means of defense from attack on the streets is to baffle the watchfulness of the aggressor by skillful blows. The most simple and at the same time most effective foil is applied in the shape of the umbrella upon his headgear. Surprised by this stroke and perhaps blinded by the rim of the hat, he has not the time nor the presence of mind to seize the umbrella. The lunges which follow such a blow are not only known as the hedgehog blow. Seizing her umbrella near the handle with one hand and near the point with the other and advancing a step well forward, the point if well directed against the center of the aggressor's neck will drop him to the ground senseless and probably unconscious. The blow however strong in the pit of the stomach will probably send the recipient to the hospital and perhaps cripple him for life.

Municipal Theaters.

The first municipal unconstitutional theater in America—an unincorporated town situated in operation in Red Wing, Minn. Red Wing is a town of only 10,000 persons, forty miles down the Mississippi river from St. Paul, and to it several years ago a citizen left $80,000 to found a municipal theater. A citizens committee under the leadership of men who have no telephone and no wire, have done their work that for the last three years a dividend on the capital invested has been paid to the town. Professor Richard Burton in a lecture on the drama, using the Red Wing experiment as a criterion, predicts that "in ten years probably and in twenty-five years certain" every considerable city in the United States will have its municipal theater."

Milk Bricks.

Milk bricks are sold in Belgium and Denmark. These bricks are milk frozen solid, and when intended for use as soon as received in the household the icecold fluid for the tea or coffee has to be chipped off according to the quantity desired in the drink. This brick milk has grown to be a necessity in the warmer countries of Europe. The Belgians were the first to invent this砖冰，to increase the trade. In Copenhagen a firm engaged in this business makes a weekly delivery of 300,000 pounds. A great deal of this goes to distant countries.

The Comet Now and Then.

This comet has been visible for years ago, when Halley's comet, for whose resuscitation astronomers are now looking, was in the heavens. Then the Christian world prayed to be delivered from "the devil, the Turk and the comet." Now it says the devil is not so black as he has been painted, the Turk a negligible quantity, and the comet would be rather welcome than otherwise.—Boston Transcript.

Balloons and Bullets.

Experiments conducted abroad have demonstrated that balloons traveling at a height of from 100 to 1500 feet could be hit in one of six shots, while they were absolutely safe at a height of 3,000 feet. Even when struck the damage to the gas bag was so small that the balloon was able to continue its journey for hours before the escaping gas made a landing necessary.

HUMOR IN A WILL.

Son-in-Law Urged to Buy Rope and Hang Himself.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21.—The feeling entertained by the late George D. Wolff, of Somerdale, toward Chas. W. Wenzell, his son-in-law, is shown in the following paragraph in his will, which was admitted to probate today:

"Fifty cents be paid to my son-in-law, Charles W. Wenzell, a native of Huntingdon, Pa., to enable him to buy a good stout rope with which to hang himself."

Remarkable Change in Negro's Skin From Ointment.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 24.—Frankfort has a remarkable scientific phenomenon which is attracting much attention from the physicians of this section of the state. Ben Sayers, a negro, has turned white as a result of coming in contact with poison ivy. The scientific explanation of the change is that the pigment of the body has been destroyed by the poison, or by the medicine which was used to counteract it.

Sayers is a well-known negro shoemaker of Frankfort. He never was black, but was dark skinned and unmistakably a negro. Several weeks ago he was attacked by poison ivy and there was a breaking out all over his body, except on his shoulders. He treated the eruption with some sort of medicine and recovered from the effects of the poison. Then he was much frightened to notice white spots appearing on his body. He did not know what it meant and thought that he was going to die, although he was suffering no pain and was perfectly well. The skin did not peel off, but the color of it slowly began to change, the white spots spreading gradually wherever the medicine had been.

At the end of a few weeks Sayers had turned white all over except on the shoulders, where the medicine had not been put. Now Sayers is as white as any man in Frankfort and would pass for a white man any place.

Christmas Fiction.

Preaching the moral of mutual forbearance, Rowland Thomas' story "The King's Prerogative," in the December Everybody's, is a delightful innovation in the field of magazine fiction. Its humor is subtle, but still fantastic, and the story, unusual in itself, is particularly adapted to the Christmas season, while the illustrations by Charles E. Falls carry out the spirit of the tale to perfection.

There is in this number a delightfully written story, "The Tale-Bearer," by Olivia Howard Dunbar, and one of O. Henry's inimitable combinations of pathos and humor, "The Third Ingredient." Lewis E. Drayton has a charming tale of romantic love in "The Enchanted House," and in "Nolan's Revolt" Alvah Milton Hovey has written the story of a real man who thinks the life-struggle is going against him, and of a real little boy whose adventures bring this man back to his senses—and his home. It has a tremendous heart-tug.

Then there are "Little Stories of Real Life" — "Getting Christmas

Dooley" writes on "A New Literary Light." This is a satire on the autobiography of John D. Rockefeller. Ida M. Tarbell writes the story of the traction war in Chicago, under the title "How Chicago is Finding Herself." Professor Thomas of Chicago University, contributes an article on "The Mind of Woman."

TORTOISE SHELL.

The Way the Plates Are Removed From the Animal.

The comb of tortoise shell has a very pale and translucent yellow, the only really valuable kind of shell. "Many people think this pale, mottled shell the cheaper kind," the dealer said. "Do you know why? Because the imitations are all made like this."

"That is one vulgar error about shell. Another is that the tortoise is killed to get its shell. This is another error as well as a misconception. The shell is killed to get its wool."

"What is done is this: The fishermen, having caught a tortoise, tie him and then cover his back with dry grass and leaves. They set fire to the shell to burn slowly, and the heat causes the thirteen plates of the shell to separate. When this is done, the plates are pried off, and afterward the tortoise is set free. The base, or root, of his shell is intact and will grow again. If tortoises were killed to become extinct.

"No, no. Every tortoise is as it were, a farm—a shell farm. Fishermen catch him regularly with heat and a knife gently remove his stuff."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

COLORS IN THE OCEAN.

Various Causes For the Different Tints of the Water.

Sky and cloud colors are often reflected in the sea, but as the air has its sunset glory so water has its coloring quite apart from mere reflection.

Olive and brown tints in the waves off the coast come from the muddy sediment washed from the shore, as blues arise chiefly from reflected sky.

But there are many other colors in the ocean. On almost every long voyage at sea, some color will be observed at one time or another.

When a few drops of the discolored water are examined under a microscope myriads of minute cylinder-shaped algae are seen, some separate, some joined together in scores. It is this organism—sometimes called "sea sawdust"—that gives the color to the water in the Red sea, although it also abounds in other waters.

Sometimes the water far from land will be seen to be of a chocolate hue for an extent of several miles, and this is caused by millions upon millions of minute one-celled animals which lash themselves along, eat up little bits of organic course, by means of the finest of hair-like threads of cilia.—Pearson's.

The Traces of the Beasts.

On every side in the Malay wilds the traces of the beasts—which here live as scheduled, as safe from molestation, as did their ancestors in pre-Adamic days—are visible on trees and rocks, on the ground, on the stones and the yielding clay at the drinking places by the hurrying stream. Here a belt of mud nine feet from the ground shows that an elephant has rubbed his itching back against the rough bark of a tree, and, see, coarse hairs still stick to the unbroken clay. There a long sharp scratch repeated at regular intervals carries the passing of a rhinoceros. Here, again, is the pad mark of a tiger barely an hour old, and the pitted tracks of deer of all sizes and varieties surround the deeply punched holes which are the footprints of an elephant.—Cornhill Magazine.

Settled the Sign.

When William M. Evans was secretary of state a new elevator man had been employed in the department who was a negro and was paid by eight. In his car was a conspicuously small sign to the effect that by order of the secretary of state smoking was prohibited. One day Mr. Evans boarded the car in company with a famous senator, the latter smoking a cigar. The new man promptly touched the smoke on the senator's nose, in imitation of the police. "Can't you read that sign?" Mr. Evans promptly tore down the offending notice and, turning to the elevator man, said: "What sign? I don't see any." The attendant, suspecting something, wisely held his peace, but he followed the pair out and asked the guard at the door who the chap with the large head was. The guard told him.

England's Prettiest Villages.

After a very careful survey we venture to write down the names of the six English villages that we consider the prettiest. These names, in our own opinion and wide experience, are concerned. The choice is made impartially and with full knowledge and due recognition of the claims of each to its high place. Here are the six: Bonchurch, Isle of Wight; Clovelly, Devonshire; Dunsford, Dorset; Sonning, Oxfordshire; Shireburn, North Clapham, Yorkshire.—London Strand Magazine.

Accomplished.

"She's got a future."
"Is she act?"
"Yes, but she can work her eyes better than any lady in the business, and as for wearing swell clothes—gee, she couldn't do better if she was twins!"—Life.

Very Careful.

Indulgent Uncle Jack, you care for your young ones more than these fay? Jack—Yes, sir. I manage, with some effort, to make them balance my income to the exact cent. — Chicago Tribune.

The world doesn't really grow worse every time you need medicine.—Galveston Daily News.

ACT QUICKLY.

Delay Has Been Dangerous
In Hopkinsville.

Do the right thing at the right time.

Act quickly in times of danger. Backache is kidney danger. Doan's Kidney Pills act quick. Cure all distressing, dangerous kidney ill.

Plenty of evidence to prove this, F. M. Hall, Cadiz, Ky., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and was pleased with the result derived. For six years my kidneys did not do their work properly. I had severe pains in the small of my back and whenever I stopped or lifted, sharp twinges would cause me great misery. At night my back ached considerably and mornings when first arising, would be very lame. I became tired easily and became very dull and languid. Dizzy spells also caused me much annoyance and at times blurred my eyesight. The passages of the kidney secretions were two frequent and at times I was forced to rise during the night on this account. Whenever I caught cold, it settled on my kidneys and caused me to suffer more intensely. I recently procured Doan's Kidney Pills and although I have used them before the contents of one box, I have received great relief. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy that is up to representations."

Plenty more proof like this from Hopkinsville people. Call at L. A. Johnson & Co.'s drug store and ask what their customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doans—and take no other.

The Same Thing.

"I'm sorry we haven't much of a dinner," said Spotts to Bloobumper, whom had urged to stay for that meal. "You ought to have dropped in last evening. We had a stunning dinner then."

"Why, just what you told Mr. Taddeus at dinner yesterday!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Date of Buddha.

On the authority of the available inscriptions and of the tradition as recorded in the Ceylonese chronicles the date of the nirvana of Buddha is found by the latest writer on the subject to be A.D. 2, B. C., and as tradition assigns eighty years as the period of his life this must be considered to have been born in the year 567 B. C.—Indian World.

The Weather.

FOR KENTUCKY—Generally fair Saturday. Not much change in temperature.

The Cadiz Record intimates that Judge Wells, of Calloway, is not popular in Trig county.

All confederate organizations have been given a general order to observe the nineteenth anniversary of the death of Jefferson Davis on December 6.

Salt Lake City waded around in 10 inches of snow Thanksgiving Day. This is a big country we live in and a man can find any kind of weather he wants.

President Castro, of Venezuela, is to pay a visit to Europe to have a dangerous surgical operation performed by Dr. Israel, of Berlin, for an internal abscess near his kidneys.
During his absence, Vice President
Vicente Gomez will act as President.
Castro has never before been out of Venezuela.

The petition to President Milton
H. Smith, of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, asking for a new depot in this city, now contains more than 500 names and the list of signers is increasing every day. The movement has reached the proportions of a popular clamor.

Before adjourning, the grand jury at Murray returned an indictment charging the Louisville Herald with criminal libel. The bill charges the Herald with malicious and untrue utterances against Judge Thomas P. Cook in an editorial of August 23, in commenting on the night rider cases in his court. As Judge Cook will not be competent to sit in the case, Gov. Wilson will have to appoint a special judge to preside.

It has developed that the three Skinback negroes who were lynched by a mob at Tiptonville, Tenn., Tuesday evening, were not hanged to a tree, as first reported, but were executed on a scaffold built in the church where they shot the officers last Saturday night.

The justice of the peace and jurors who conducted the mock trial while preparations for the hanging were going on, are likely to find themselves indicted for murder.

"Judge" Boe, the bogus claim forger in the Auditor's office, seems to have been the worst thief turned out in Kentucky for many a day.
Even those who tried to shield him at first are now convinced that he is a crook of the worst type, who deliberately robbed the state for seven years. He should spend the rest of his days behind the prison bars and some way should be found to make him disgorge the $20,000 to $50,000 he has stolen.

Mr. Foard's Funeral.

The funeral services of the late Walter A. Foard were held at the Christian church Thursday afternoon and a large crowd attended the obsequies of the popular young farmer. The interment followed in Riverside cemetery.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is to connect the brain. Deafness is caused by an infected condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is infected you have a rumbling sound or infected head, and sometimes a pain in the ear. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal living condition, deafness will continue.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any man or woman who can cure deafness.

CHRISTMAS EDITION.

The Kentuckian has contracted with Mr. W. T. Thornton for the issue of a mammoth Christmas and Tobacco edition of the Kentuckian before the Holidays; which will be one of the largest and handsomest papers ever issued in the city. Special attention will be paid to the compilation of tobacco news of interest to all growers.

Three will be special articles from Association officials and others, and statistics, reports and matters of interest to all growers and dealers in tobacco, presented in an unbiased and disinterested manner.

A large extra edition will be printed and the papers will be circulated all over this section of the state.

Leases Cerulean.

Cerulean Spring Hotel, Trig county's noted summer resort, has been leased by Capt. R. S. Pool, the owner, to B. Frank Smith, the live-man at that place, for next year.

Sale Called Off

Mr. Hugh Hammock's sale advertised for Dec. 2, near Casy, has been called off and will not occur.

A Leading Question.

Supervision of McLaren of San Francisco's system of public parks was inspecting the work of restoring Union square to its former beauty, now that the little St. Francis has been removed.

"I'm for heaven's sake in our business here," remarked a gardener with a brogue.

"Which one?" inquired McLaren.
"You don't mean this beautiful little Scotch heather? All it needs is more water and it will grow as tall as you are."

"You're not very tall yourself, Mr.
McLaren."

"Not extraordinarily so."

"I say, Mr. McLaren," reflected the gardener thoughtfully, "did you ever try water yourself?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Safety for Jewelry Stores.

In view of the increased number of jewelry robberies the Jewelers' Security alliance is urging upon the trade the use of a new and effective theft-catching device. The contrivance consists of a metal frame behind the counter and operated by the cashier. By pushing this lever the door of the store is locked through the operation of a bolt at the bottom. The apparatus connects also with a large gong placed outside over the door which is sure to attract the attention of passers by if the encroaching thief. A Philadelphia jeweler, the Jewelers' Security alliance, used a similar appliance recently with successful results.

Criticizes the Aeroplane.

It is declared by the Voisin brothers of Paris that the Wright aeroplane can never have any value for practical purpose. They maintain that the Wright aeroplane is the most dangerous flying machine. Any one can work a tricycle with half an hour. One can learn to ride a monocycle in a few hours, but to ride a bicycle takes a long time and the native gifts of the acrobat. So why not make a bicycle for amateurs and sportsmen?" The Voisin brothers believe in their "triplanes" on account of their stability.

A Coffin of Matchboxes.

For the last ten years William Bill-dull, of Croydon, Surrey, Chester County, who died recently, was employed in the construction of his own coffin, made of empty matchboxes. It is of the ordinary shape, and much patience and skill have been bestowed on it. There is, of course, an inner shell of wood, on which the match-boxes are glued, and there are some 500 matchboxes on the lid alone. The total on the coffin must run into several thousand.—London Times.

Age of the Great Pyramid.

Considerable interest has been aroused among archaeologists by the announcement of Professor Flinders Petrie, of the French school, well known Egyptologist, that he has made further discoveries with regard to the building of the pyramid of Cheops on the west bank of the Nile which establish beyond doubt the date of its construction as being the same as that of the construction of the pyramids of Giza, Africa.

All His Life Without a Holiday.

George Hayward, aged ninety-one, who had just died at Needham Market, lived nearly all his life in the same house. He never had a day's holiday and never saw the sea. Hayward was formerly in business as a butcher, and he was in the habit of wearing an apron at church on Sundays beneath

HOW BOE WORKED.

Almost Cleaned the Platter
On Trigg County Claims.

Cadiz, Ky., Nov. 27.—As the civil suit that has recently been bought at Frankfort by Auditor James against Judge Charles E. Booé was upon claims allowed by the Trigg county circuit court at its September term, 1907, it has caused considerable comment and investigation of the records in Circuit Clerk A. C. Burnett's office at this place. The facts as revealed by these investigations are about as follows: Warrant No.
1297, payable to Will Allen which is shown by Booé's records for $122.95, was only for $2; warrant No. 1298, payable to A. C. Burnett for $15.84, is correct; warrant No.
1299, payable to Ben Tilford & Co., for $1,000, is bogus in its entirety, and the warrant of Walker Redd for $189, was only for $2. Thus it appears from the records of the Trigg circuit court that out of the total amount of $1,277.79, which it seems from the suit that Judge Booé collected from the state on this one report, only $19.84 of it ever reached Trigg county, which was the correct amount as authorized by the Trigg circuit court.

In a letter written by Circuit
Clerk A. C. Burnett to State Inspector
M. H. Thacher, in which the above facts are given, he closes his letter as follows: "The Ben Til-ford claim is bogus in its entirety, and if the same appears on my report of claims for that term of court it is a forgery, as I never certified any such claim and none was ever allowed by the Trigg circuit court."

FOUR ECLIPSES

And Halley's Comet Coming
In 1909.

There will be four eclipses in the year 1909, two of the sun and two of the moon.

The first will be a total of the moon June 2, the moon rising more or less eclipsed. The second will be the Central of the sun, June 17, visible throughout the United States except in the extreme southwestern portion.

The third will be a total of the moon on the evening of Nov. 26 and morning of the 27th, visible. The fourth will be a partial of the sun December 12, invisible. April 11 will be Easter Sunday, and May 30 Whit Sunday.

Halley's comet, by some supposed to be the star of Bethlehem, is due in 1909-10. It will probably be visible to the naked eye in October, 1909. Its period is about 75 years and it has been observed at these intervals since the 15th century. Records show its probable return many centuries earlier. The comet's last visit was in 1835 when its tail was about twenty degrees long.

The Slim Woman is Winning.

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers.

This would have been news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try harder or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the styles goes to a druggist and gets a case of Marmola Prescription Tablet, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so easily loses weight.

These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless and they are, also, the most economical preparation a person can buy. Not more than 15 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of 12 or 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich.

A Radical Departure.

The popular illustrated weeklies and monthlies are produced at enormous cost. Competition for the work of the leading authors and illustrators has established a scale of expense that is almost prohibitive.

Yet in addition to its many attractive features THE CHICAGO SUNDAY RECORD-HERALD furnishes its readers with a Sunday Magazine which compares favorably with the independent periodicals in every way and has some merits peculiar to itself. The most famous writers and illustrators contribute to it. Fine paper and presswork and handy size make it a pleasure to read this enterprising publication which marks a radical departure in Sunday journalism.

The rain Wednesday night gave the streets a good washing off.

AFTER CUMBERLAND

Must Toe Mark or Get Out of Town.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 26.—Several months ago the Cumberland Telephone Company's franchise here expired, and it has not been renewed because the company insists upon raising the rates while the city insists upon holding them where they now are. The telephone company agreed to prepare a test suit by Nov. 1 to have the court of appeals decide which contention is right, but failed to do so.

City Attorney Slack has advised the city council that it should order the Cumberland Telephone Company to stop doing business in Owensboro and remove all poles from the streets of the city. He also urges prosecution of the company in the city court for any charge for telephone rental prescribed in the old franchise.

The raise over which a fight has come up is 50 cents on each phone.

POULTRY BUSINESS

Has Brought Many Thousands of Dollars Here.

One firm in this city in the two weeks before Thanksgiving handled 6,000 turkeys and large numbers of ducks, geese and chickens.

The turkeys were collected from all over this part of Kentucky and Tennessee, coming in here frequently in car load lots. The prices paid for them ranged from 10 to 11 cents per pound gross. A force of from thirty to forty negroes were kept busy stripping the feathers from the turkeys, this being the extent of the dressing. The other fowls were shipped alive.

Still another firm handled almost as many, but they shipped all of theirs in the live state and in car load lots. Most of the shipments went to Chicago and Louisville. It is estimated that $15,000 worth of fowls have been shipped out of the country since the first of November.

The Fairy Godmother.

By JEROME SPRAGUE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Bubbles didn't care whether it was appropriate or not; she wanted it, and she was saving up her money to get it.

Every morning when she went to the school she found the girls talking of their summer hats.

"What kind are you going to have?" they would ask her, and Bubbles would laugh—the gay bubble laughing had given her her nickname—and would say, "Wait and see, girls; wait and see."

"Oh, piffle!" one of them said on a certain June morning. "I don't believe you're going to get a hat."

"Wait and see; wait and see," said Bubbles provokingly.

And then after the store was closed she went around the corner and looked at the hat with the white feather.

Bubbles earned $4 a week. Out of that she paid her aunt $2.50 for board. Fifty cents went for car fare, and the rest she had for herself. Since last summer she had managed to save $3.50, and the other forty would add to that, so she need not buy the hat with the white feather.

She decided to tell Alice Forbes about it.

Alice was at the ribbon counter, while Bubbles sold notions. Their acquaintance rose from the fact that they walked home in the same direction.

"I'll have to wear it with all my old blue suit," Bubbles said as she went along. "But I don't care. I've made myself a white net waist, and it's awfully becoming."

"Ten dollars is a lot for a hat," Alice said quickly.

But Bubbles laughed, with her head flung up and her bright eyes shining. "Oh, what's the use of living," she said. "If a girl can't have something pretty now and then?"

Alice nodded. Her blue eyes were wistful. "That's what I think," she said. "Alice, there's a remnant of ribbon at my counter. It's white, with bunches of pink roses on it. It would make a lovely girlie, and I could buy a white dress for 15 cents a yard and a little wreath of pink roses in the millinery department, and then I could be dressed like a little Drake."

"Does she want you to be?" Bubbles asked with interest.

"Yes," Alice said. "Jimmie Bryan is to be best man."

"Oh!" Bubbles was silent for a moment. Then she asked, "Don't you think you can afford the dress?"

"No, I can't," Alice said. "I can't. And I told Mille last night to ask you, Bubbles. I knew you wouldn't mind being asked second, because I'm her oldest friend. I laid the piece of powdered ribbon away this morning, so that if you wanted it you could have it. You could have the net skirt to pretty your waist. It would be awfully pretty with the pink roses."

Bubbles was looking at her curiously.

"Don't you mind," she asked—"I mean not being bridesmaid?"

"Yes, I do," Alice said, and Bubbles saw the tears were full of tears.

"But I have to give all of my money to mother now that father is sick and can't work."

"Well, it's a hard old world," Bubbles remarked as they reached the corner where they separated. "If I decide to take the ribbon, Alice, I'll let you know in the morning."

At the next corner Bubbles met Jimmie Bryan.

"Jimmie," she said, with her gray eyes challenging him. "Jimmie, are you going to be best man at Mille's wedding?"

"So you answered Jimmie—'cutaway, white flower in my coat and all the rest of the story.'"

"And me to walk up the aisle with you?" said Bubbles.

Jimmie looked at her in surprise. "I thought Alice was going—was going to do it," he said.

"Alice can't get the clothes," Bubbles informed him, "and if I wasn't a scrofulous pig I'd get them for her, but I want a white feather in my summer hat."

Jimmie hesitated. "Look here, Bubbles," he said a little awkwardly, "ain't there some way you could make Alice think you were getting her dress and let me pay for it? I'd like to do it."

Bubbles caught her breath quickly.

"Why, Jimmie," she said.

Jimmie flushed. "She has an awful nerve time," he said.

"Yes, she does," Bubbles agreed abashedly. She was a little white, but still smiled at Jimmie.

"So you want me to be bridesmaid with you?" she tensed, still with a funny catch in her breath.

"Aw, Bubbles," he stammered, "you know I think you're about the neatest thing ever!"

"But you'd rather have Alice walk up the aisle with you," was her quiet reminder.

"I'd rather have Alice," she declared stoutly.

"Of course," Bubbles agreed, and then she went on to plan. "I could get her the things and tell her the money I have come to me unexpectedly."

"I am afraid that wouldn't do," was Jimmie's worried response. "I guess it's as if she had to pay it back. You get the things and send them to her, and don't have any mark on the box, and she'll never know where they talked about." Bubbles said, "or who would know right away. Do you care how much you spend, Jimmie?"

"No," he told her with the recklessness of the skilled laborer who earns his $3 a day; "no, I don't."

"Then I'll get a robe dress of pink muslin, a wreath of silver roses. She'll look like a dream, Jimmie."

"I hope she will," Jimmie said, and Bubbles sighed.

"Goodby, Jimmie," she said as she came to the tenement where she lived on the third floor.

He looked at her anxiously. "You're not going to be bridesmaid, are you?" he asked.

She shook her head. "No," she answered bravely.

"Well, you're pretty nice, Bubbles," he said heartily, and then he went on his way.

At last Bubbles reached home, took out her hoarded store of money, with what she would add on her next pay day she would have $10, and she could buy the hat with the white feather.

She fingered the money for a moment, and then she dropped her head on her arm with a sob, for Bubbles had wanted that hat to wear to church on Sunday morning when she sang in the choir with Jimmie Bryan. It had been for Jimmie's admiration that she had craved the pretty hat. And, after all, it was Alice that Jimmie cared for.

Two days later Alice came to her sister breathlessly.

"Oh, Bubbles," she said, "such a wonderful thing has happened!"

"What?" asked Bubbles innocently.

And then Alice told her of the wonderful gown and the dainty accessories that had come the night before in a big box.

"I can't imagine who sent them."

"It must have been a fairy godmother," said Bubbles demurely.

"And now I can be Mille's bridesmaid," caroled Alice when she had exhausted all her conjectures as to who sent them.

"You won't mind, will you, Bubbles?"

"No," said Bubbles steadily.

And as she needled and pins and hooked and eyes and whalebones and a hundred and one other things that day she told herself that she did care. Why should she want to walk beside Jimmie Bryan when he preferred to have Alice?

She passed the window with the hat with the white feather that night without a glance, and on Sunday she wore a plain little black sallet with a cheap red rose, and she looked prettier than ever.

"Alice thinks you're a fairy godmother," she told Jimmie after service.

"Say, did she like it?" he demanded. "Of course she did," said Bubbles. "Who wouldn't?"

But Jimmie did not answer immediately. He stood looking down at her. "Say, little girl," he said presently, "you look mighty nice in that hat."

"It cost just $1.98," Bubbles informed him glibly, "marked down from $2."

"I don't care what it cost," Jimmie stated. "You look mighty nice."

Bubbles couldn't resist saying, "But not half as nice as Alice will in that sailor role."

"Bubbles, I believe you're jealous," dashed Jimmie unexpectedly.

Bubbles' cheeks flamed. "Why, Jimmie Bryan," she faltered.

"Look here," Jimmie demanded, "did you think I was in love with Alice?"

"No, I know he been scratchy Bubbles was forced to admit, "I couldn't very well help it, could I?"

"I was afraid you would," Jimmie said, "that day when I planned to get her the things, but I had promised. Oh, look here, Bubbles, you come out to walk with me, and I'll tell you about it."

And all the way to the park Bubbles' heart sang, and she seemed to walk on air, and she was glad that she hadn't bought the hat with the white feather. She was glad she hadn't been extravagant, for Jimmie Bryan had a good deal of money in the black sailor with the red rose.

In the park the beds were full of jonquils and tulips and hyacinths and crocuses, and under the flowering almond tree Jimmie and Bubbles sat down to talk.

"You see," Jimmie explained, "there's Bob Travers, he's in the navy, and he's been away on a long cruise, and he made me promise that I'd look after Alice—they've been in love with each other since they were kids—and when Alice's father got sick I tried to help, but they wouldn't let me, and it seemed as though Alice's father the dress would be what Bob would want me to do and now he's going to get home in time for the wedding, and I told Mille she'd have to have him for best man."

"Oh!" cried Bubbles, aglow with happiness.

"And then I told her how much I thought of you, and she wants us to be in the wedding party—and—Oh, well, we have Bubbles." And in the shadow of the flowering almond he held out his arms.

And Bubbles, having wept a little weep of joy on his broad shoulder, sat up and wiped her eyes. "Ain't I glad I didn't spend all my money for that foolish diamond?" she said. "I'll get that white net skirt and wear the rose but ribbon!"

"And a diamond ring," interrupted Jimmie.

"A diamond ring! What for?" demanded Bubbles.

"Because we're engaged," said Jimmie rapturously.

"I hear you're teaching your son to play draw poker. Do you think that wise?"

"Certainly. He's bound to learn from me one. If he learns from me it and shell never know where they were."

HOW THE DOCTOR WON.

By JEANNETTE S. BENTON.

The office boy heard the doctor in the annex and went out. His face was buried in a basin of water, and the formaldehyde bottle stood open.

"How's the smallpox?" he asked.

"Bad," she replied, emerging rosy from the towel. "Is any one waiting?"

"No one now but Mr. Deane Aldrich. Been three or four, but you got tired waiting."

"Very well. Tell him I will be there in a minute."

As the boy closed the door she walked to the mirror and regarded herself attentively, spraying violet water over her hands and hair.

"I wish I had some powder," she murmured. "I am afraid I look horrid."

To the tall young man in the reception room she looked discouragingly cool and unperturbed as he arose at her entrance.

"It is a little matter, doctor," he explained. "I have just been transferred to the office and have smallpox down there, so I suppose it is necessary to be vaccinated."

"It certainly is if you haven't been lately. Things are in bad shape at the Y. I have put in the whole afternoon there. There's a good deal of smallpox and more dissatisfaction. I suppose dissatisfaction is what sent you there?"

"I suppose so. What's the bottom of the trouble anyway?"

"Sickening hospitals and the company store. If you can get the company to do anything before those people murder you, send us nearest representative. You will be doing good work. However, come into the office, and I will vaccinate you."

He followed her in.

"This is the first time I ever came here as a subject," he remarked.

He handed her a card, looked doubtfully at his white surface.

How could she be a doctor? Still, he had sometimes wished he could be sick a week or two. It would be such a good chance to see her every day. That was she going to do with that razor looking knife? It had been so long since he had run across her, and he had forgotten all about it. Did she jab the stuff in at the end of that? If she was going to do it he wished she would and stop that scratching.

He watched the scratching knife fascinated. Suddenly it began to drop.

Dr. Aldrich felt his arm relaxing under her grasp. With a movement as quiet as it was quick she eased his stalwart body to the floor, then loosened his collar and dashed a little water on his face.

He opened his eyes slowly.

"Oh, I say," he gasped, "what's the matter?"

The doctor stod a little way off regarding him with professional gravity.

"I was vaccinating you, and you fainted," she explained. "You will be all right in a moment."

He sat rather uncertainly to his feet and leaned against a convenient case of drawers.

"Good Lord!" he groaned. "What do you think of me? I know you don't think it was because it hurt. I don't know what it was. I was watching that sharp knife; then I was here on the floor. Please finish the job," he concluded irritably. "I'll try to stand up after it."

As she adjusted the small bandage he thought savagely:

"If I should lift you off your feet, my sweet doctor, and kiss that deliciously delicate, slightly tanned, expectant muscle. How can a fellow make love to a woman doctor anyway?" Aloud he said, "Thank you, doctor," rather abruptly, hurried into his coat, settled with the office boy and got away with all speed.

He ran to the window and watched him go striding off, his big shoulders squared.

"Poor old fellow!" she said softly.

Then she flushed and smiled in a way that little befitted a member of the medical profession.

He is bashful and stupid, too," she pointed out.

Deane Aldrich squared his shoulders against his troubles often that winter. His recognized powers as a practitioner seemed to have忽然 failed.

One day he swung into the cart as the doctor was trotting home.

"So here I am," he said. "I must talk with you. I don't know what to do with those people. Heaven knows they have reason enough to be sore, and I am helpless. Of course they can't realize that, but the company pays no attention to my representations."

"I have been tempted a hundred times," he said defiantly. "And you were too--too stupid to--er--fall!"

The doctor interrupted. "That means a strike, to begin with. Then Kate McGuire and Dilsey Kearney--why they are as soon have a riot as enough to eat."

"But what can I do? The men have come on the shift twice within a week drunk and quarreleasant. Overlook it and they will all get drunk and--"

"Hate hordes," gently suggested the doctor. Then her face grew pale, and she said, "I am afraid I must better follow your predecessor's example and throw it up," she suggested.

He looked at her with decided sternness.

"I suppose that was about the opinion you entertained of me. Eugene, isn't there a man I want to see?" And Mr. Aldrich had checked the time.

It was cold, with a driving mist, when the doctor drove up to her gate several evenings later.

"Poor Bess!" she said to the panting horse. "Tired, aren't you?"

The small, tattered boy came down the road, running wearily, as though nearly spent.

"On, Miss Doctor," he shrilled, "wait!"

His face shone pale through the dirt. As he came up she recognized the pit boss' boy.

"Excuse me to tell you to do something quick. Kate and Dilsey is out with a lot of wimmin, an' they are runnin' wild. Mr. Aldrich went down with the new shift. Pa told him he better watch things on top, but we are goin' to git hold of the shaft house an' when Mr. Aldrich comes up with the new men either drop the cage or rock 'em."

The doctor's face had grown white as the boy talked.

"The shift will come up at 67" she asked.

The boy nodded.

"Come in the house. You must be tired and fed. I will telephone the police, but Bess and I will get there half an hour ahead of them. Heaven knows what we will do, but we will do something or die!" she half whispered.

"Now, go, Bess!" she cried as she sprang into the boy's arms.

As she approached the little town she could hear a swelling din of discordant voices. She dashed through an alley and came out in the street in front of the shaft house. The women were sweeping around the corner just below her, fifteen or twenty of them, their brown eyes brightened mischievously, and she wheeled the horse and cart directly in front of the howling crowd.

"Kate McGuire," she called, pointing an arm while she held the maddening material carried them nearly to the cart. Then, as they could not conveniently climb it and the "darlin' doctor" was a person to respect anyway, they stopped.

"What do you mean?" she demanded sternly, "yeing around in this cold weather? What do you mean for your neuritis? You will be crazy with it. Your cheek is all swelled up now, and your eye looks as though you had broken a blood vessel. I knew a woman once"--her voice grew deeply impressive--"whose eye burst, and she didn't even herself the way you are doing other. And you, too, Dilsey, just nicely over the smallpox; do you know what you will have? You will have a relapse!"

She fairly hurled the word at her, and Dilsey received it with a mean of terror.

"It's fatal!"

Kate had shut her mouth and was whining softly, cuddling her face in her damp shawl. She turned reproachfully to the women behind her.

"The doctor's right. This do be a somethin' bad. I never seen nothin' to be out in, an' ye ought to be ashamed. Head's crazy already wid the pain."

She came close to the buggy.

"Doctor dear, do be givin' me somethin'!" she entreated.

"How many of you have vaccinated yourselves before taking cold in?" And poor Jerusha, who taught you to me you couldn't speak a word herself.

"No more I can," croaked Jerusha hoarsely.

"Go home, every one of you!" she waved imperiously. "You ought to be ashamed, running around like a lot of tumbrels. I'll come around presently and give you something for that neuritis, Kate, and you a dose, too, Dilsey."

Five minutes later there wasn't a woman in sight save the doctor.

She drove the trembling horse into one of the sheds.

"The old girl!" she said, loosening up the harness. "I nearly killed you, didn't I?"

There was a sound of hurrying feet, and Mr. Aldrich came in breathlessly.

"Are you safe?" he cried.

She gave him one quick glance, her white and red lips set with becoming gravitas.

"I think I am," she replied, with a mild note of inquiry. "Do you feel dangerous?"

He strode up to her and looked down into the provoking face.

"A man who faints when he is vaccinated is a fit subject to be saved from the smallpox," he retorted.

"Don't think I don't realize how serious it was. I know you probably saved me from a very unpleasant death, but I wish you hadn't."

He searched her face in instant, then suddenly drew her to him and kissed her with a fervor and desire divine that was flaming at her.

"I have been tempted a hundred times," he said defiantly.

"And you were too--too stupid to--er--fall!"

He took her hand and led her to the provoking face.

OFFICE OF

Black Patch Warehouse Company.

Clarksville, Tenn., Nov. 24, 1908.

Dear Sir:

The undersigned begs leave to give notice of the organization of The Black Patch Warehouse Company. The capital stock has been fixed at $50,000, a large part of which has been taken by farmers. This company is a product of the Kendrick-Runnyan Warehouse Company, which it succeeds. From the date of the organization of the latter named company, some four years ago, with a capital stock of $10,000, it did a profitable business, each year showing a gratifying increase over the preceding year. In order that the growth of the business might continue unhampered, and especially with a view of advancing farmers more money on their tobacco, the formation of this new and stronger company was found both practicable and advisable. Its stockholders are composed of some of the most influential and conservative men of the Black Patch district, a fact that insures increased prosperity for the business, supplied as it will be with ample capital to prosecute a warehouse business in such manner as will promote the interest of its patrons in every legitimate manner possible. The same conservative policy that characterized the management of the Kendrick-Runnyan Warehouse Company will be adhered to. As general manager of the new company, I shall endeavor always to pursue such course as will promote the mutual interests of the patrons and stockholders.

The Black Patch Warehouse Company will be ready for business on or about Dec. 1, 1908, and will occupy the same warehouse which its predecessor has operated for a number of years, and which is conceded to be as desirable in every particular as any in Clarksville. We desire to state that we shall set aside a room in the warehouse for the special accommodation of our friends from the country, which will be comfortably heated in the winter, supplied with ice water in the summer and furnished with other conveniences. This room will be at the disposal of all farmers and their families who may visit the city, regardless of whether they are patrons of the house or not.

In conclusion I beg to state that we shall be actively alert for the business of the planter, pledging all alike our best efforts in the service of our patrons.

Very truly yours,
C. D. RUNYON, Manager
Black Patch Warehouse Company.
